Answer

Section 17(5) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Police Service of Northern Ireland, when refusing to provide such information (because the cost of compliance exceeds the appropriate limit) to provide you the applicant with a notice which states that fact.

It is estimated that the cost of complying with your request for information would exceed the "appropriate costs limit" under Section 12(1) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, which is currently set by the Secretary of State at £450 (18 hours).

The Police Service of Northern Ireland do not specifically record and/or monitor where maintenance work is necessary due to vehicle mis-fuelling. Vehicle faults are recorded on the basis of the information provided by the customer and we are of the view that mis-fuelling or any repairs required would not always be presented at initial stages as a fault and therefore not recorded as such. To screen records to ascertain those occasions when it is overtly reported as the cause of the fault, would require 74 hours of research which exceeds the appropriate fees level of £450 as specified in the Freedom of Information (Fees and Appropriate Limit) Regulations 2004. To locate and retrieve the information requested would require a member of staff to carry out a time consuming search of a high volume of records.

It should be noted that as a high percentage of fuel is currently obtained from embedded bulk tanks, the chances of mis-fuelling are negligible as petrol and diesel keys used in the dispensing system are different; you cannot draw petrol on a diesel key and vice versa.

In accordance with the Freedom of Information Act 2000, this letter should be considered as a Refusal Notice, and the request has therefore been closed.

In compliance with Section 16 of the Act, I have considered if your request can be refined to bring it under the appropriate limit, however the nature and structure of the information, unfortunately makes this impossible.

Although excess cost removes the PSNI's obligations under the Freedom of Information Act, I have provided below the information which was retrieved before it was realised that the fees limit would be exceeded. I trust this is helpful but it does not affect our legal right to rely on the fees regulations for the remainder of the request.

Answer 1

There are currently 1590 diesel vehicles operated by the PSNI.
