Answer

Section 17(1) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Police Service of Northern Ireland, when refusing to provide such information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which:

- (a) states that fact,
- (b) specifies the exemption in question and
- (c) states (if not otherwise apparent) why the exemption applies.

The exemptions, as well as the factors the Department considered when deciding where the public interest lies, are listed below:

Section 40 (2)(a)(b) by virtue of Section 40(3)(a)(i) – Personal Information

Section 31(1)(a)(b) – Law Enforcement

Section 38(1)(a)(b) – Health & Safety

Section 40 Personal Information is an absolute exemption which means there is no requirement on the Public Authority to consider whether there is a public interest in disclosure. This is so because personal data is governed by other law (The Data Protection Act 1998). A disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act is a release of information to the world in general and not just to the individual applicant.

When an application is made for information other than the data subject, disclosure of the information will often constitute a breach of the Data Protection Act and is catered for within Freedom of Information by the exemptions under Section 40(2). Information relating to the applicant is exempt under Section 40(1).

All requests made under FOIA are applicant blind. A request must be treated as such and a public authority will always view any disclosure as into the public domain and not just to an individual. Personal Data is regulated under the principles of the Data Protection Act 1998 and when information contains personal data about a third party it can only be released if disclosure would not breach any of the data protection principles.

Principle 1, that personal information is processed lawfully and fairly. Individuals are entitled to protection under the Data Protection Act 1998. The Service would be failing in its lawful duty were it to breach the Data Protection Act in order to furnish a disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. The Service has a duty to protect the personal data of all individuals, both police personnel and members of the public. Therefore the names of police officers below the rank of Chief Inspector and other individuals are exempt under Section 40 of the Freedom of Information Act.

Section 31 and Section 38 are prejudice based, qualified exemptions, therefore a Harm Test and Public Interest Test are necessary.

A summary of the Harm and Public Interest considerations for Sections 38 and 31 are provided below:

Harm Test

Section 31

Disclosure of police resources and details of deployments would likely cause operational harm and affect PSNI's ability to fulfil its law enforcement role. Divulging operational information could aid those intent on causing disruption at future similar events. Release of the information could inform criminals of the strength of resources at parades and be used as an opportunity to commit crime, impacting on the prevention and detection of crime and the apprehension of criminals by police.

Section 38

Releasing the names of police officers and other individuals into the public domain could put them at risk of harm and impact on their personal safety. Terrorists and criminal elements could use this information to carry out attacks on individuals. Disclosing operational information has the potential to make the Service vulnerable to attack by terrorists, placing both officers and members of the public at increased risk.

Public Interest Test

Factors favouring release - Section 31

The PSNI must be accountable for their procedures. The public would be better informed about the measures in place at such events.

Factors favouring retention - Section 31

Disclosure of officer deployments could reveal resource levels and capabilities within the PSNI. Disclosures of officer numbers, police briefings and any instructions could compromise law enforcement tactics which could potentially be used by criminals to evade police and undermine the law enforcement role of the PSNI. Thus leading to more crime being committed and individuals being placed at risk. The use of this type of information may be of particular concern in light of the nature and extent of the prevailing terrorist threat. It may also be used by criminals/terrorists in combination with other information they have gathered to try and prejudice law enforcement.

Factors favouring release – Section 38

Disclosure would promote openness and transparency. Information relates directly to the efficiency and effectiveness of the Service and its officers.

Factors favouring retention – Section 38

Release of this information would be likely to place at risk the lives of officers and the public. This information could assist terrorists to predict the level of resources at similar future parades and enable them to launch attacks, placing both officers and the public at risk.

Decision

The PSNI has a duty to fulfil its law enforcement role and whilst there is a public interest in the transparency of policing activities and the appropriateness of how public funds are allocated, in the policing of parades, the delivery of effective law enforcement is a priority. Criminal elements could use this information to evade police, directly undermining their law enforcement role. The release of information under the Freedom of Information Act is a release into the public domain and not just to the individual requesting the information. Once information is disclosed by FOI there is no control or limits as to who or how the information is shared with other individuals, therefore a release under FOI is considered a disclosure to the world in general.

The Service is currently under severe threat from terrorists and disclosure of this level of information has the potential to assist those criminal elements seeking to carry out attacks against police officers. The Police Service will not disclose information that will put officers' lives at risk as the safety of individuals is of paramount importance and by releasing operational policing details regarding parades into the public domain has the potential to assist criminal elements to launch attacks at police officers or cause disruption at such events. Disclosing information regarding parades could also assist any protesters to cause disruption at any future parades and carry out attacks on the police, which have the potential to endanger both the lives of police officers and / or members of the public.

The lives of individuals are of paramount importance and the PSNI will not divulge any information which could put any individual at risk. Disclosing the names of police officers or other individuals would therefore not be in the public interest.

The PSNI has a duty to fulfil its law enforcement function and whilst there is a public interest in the transparency of policing activities and the appropriateness of how public funds are allocated, in the policing of parades, the delivery of effective law enforcement has overriding importance.

Question 6

11/10 Public procession report

Answer

Based on the information you have provided searches were conducted in relation to Form 11/10, however these searches failed to locate any records or documents relevant to your request. PSNI does not have a Form 11/10. Accordingly, I have determined that the Police Service of Northern Ireland does not hold the information to which you seek access. Please see response to question 5 containing Form 11/9 Public Procession Report.

Question 8

The number of persons who objected to the Parade before the parade took place.

Answer

Searches were conducted however these searches failed to locate any records or documents relevant to your request based on the information you have provided. PSNI do not record the number of people who object to parades only those who submit a Notification to Organise a Related Protest. Please see response to Question 9. Accordingly, I have determined that the Police Service of Northern Ireland does not hold the information to which you seek access.

Question 9

The names of organisations who objected to the Parade before the parade took place.

Answer

Roe Valley Residence Association.

Question 10

The number of persons who took part in the protest and how many of these persons were known by the police to be residents of the Dungiven area or the best police guess/estimate in each case.

Answer

The Freedom of Information Act assists individuals to access recorded information held by public authorities. A guess/estimate is not considered recorded information and therefore has not been provided.

Based on the information you have provided searches were conducted in relation to geographical information of those persons involved in the protest, however these searches failed to locate any records or documents, relevant to your request. Accordingly, I have determined that the Police Service of Northern Ireland does not hold the information to which you seek access. I can advise you that Form 11/3 states approximately 30 participants would be taking part in the protest. Please see response to question 2.

If you have any queries regarding your request or the decision please do not hesitate to contact me on 028 9070 0164. When contacting the Freedom of Information Team, please quote the reference number listed at the beginning of this letter.

If you are dissatisfied in any way with the handling of your request, you have the right to request a review. You should do this as soon as possible or in any case within two months of the date of issue of this letter. In the event that you require a review to be undertaken, you can do so by writing to the Head of Freedom of Information, PSNI Headquarters, 65 Knock Road, Belfast, BT5 6LE or by emailing foi@psni.pnn.police.uk.

If following an internal review, carried out by an independent decision maker, you were to remain dissatisfied in any way with the handling of the request you may make a complaint, under Section 50 of the Freedom of Information Act, to the Information Commissioner's Office and ask that they investigate whether the PSNI has complied with the terms of the Freedom of Information Act. You can write to the Information Commissioner at Information Commissioner's Office, Wycliffe House, Water Lane, Wilmslow, Cheshire, SK9 5AF. In most circumstances the Information Commissioner will not investigate a complaint unless an internal review procedure has been carried out, however the Commissioner has the option to investigate the matter at his discretion.

Please be advised that PSNI replies under Freedom of Information may be released into the public domain via our website @ www.psni.police.uk

	Consider the Rights outlined below and make a judged assessment of how police strategies might affect the rights of individuals who may be affected.	(3) Human rights impacts of the parade or protest (and resultant police strategies)

Police use of Force Article 2 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK Law by the Human Rights Act 1998) Individuals' right to life Everyone's right to life shall be protected by law. Deprivation of life which results from the use of force which is no more than absolutely necessary for a specified purpose does not contravene this Article. Article 2, in general, concerns the use of lethal or potentially lethal force. Article 3 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK law by the Human Rights Act 1998) No one shall be subjected to torture or to inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. Article 3, in general, concerns the use of non-lethal force. It also extends to police tactics in public order situations. Any use of force by the police must be no greater than is made necessary by the person's conduct. Non-lethal force used by the police must be no greater than reasonably necessary in the particular circumstances of the case.	Police will deploy sufficient resources to maintain public safety in the village. The policing strategy is for a low key local policing operation with additional resources on standby. This will permit an atmosphere of normality to exist.
Article 5 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK law by the Human Rights Act 1998) Individuals' right to liberty. This will cover issues such as detentions and arrests. It also covers the wider issues of restricting individual's freedom of movement by creating sterile zones etc.	It may be necessary to create sterile areas that will impact on freedom of movement of residents. Sterile areas impact on the movement of vehicles and to a minimal extent on the movement of pedestrians but are a proven method of achieving public safety. Although any sterile tactic can cause severe disruption to pedestrian and vehicular movement police would consider this proportionate for public safety. Police would not be detaining any person lawfully assembled and they would be free to leave on a prescribed route so not causing conflict or raising tensions.
Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK law by the Human Rights Act 1998) Individuals' rights to respect for private and family life. Disallows interference by a public authority of this right except as is in accordance with the law and is necessary in the interests of national security, public safety, economic well being of the country, prevention of disorder and crime, protection of health and morals or the protection of rights and freedoms of others.	In respect of our strategy for these events, there is some interference by police envisaged with the exercise of this Article 8 right in accordance with the law in the interest of public safety, for the prevention of disorder or crime or for the protection of the rights and freedoms of others. The use of any tactical options will be implemented in a manner, which will be appropriate and proportionate to the prevailing circumstances. Audio / video equipment may be deployed in order to collect and preserve evidence of offences under the Public Order (NI) Order 1987.

NOT PROTECTIVELY MARKED

Article 9 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK law by the Human Rights Act 1998) Right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion. Gives individuals freedom to manifest religion in worship, teaching, practice and observance. Limitations prescribed by law only by interests of public safety, public order, health or morals or for protection of rights and freedoms of others.	In respect of our strategy for this event, there is no interference by police envisaged with the exercise of this Article 9 right subject only to such limitations as are prescribed by law and are necessary in the interests of public safety, for the protection of public order, or for the protection of the rights and freedom of others.
Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK Law by the Human Rights Act 1998) Right to freedom of expression. Freedom to hold opinions and to receive or impart information and ideas without interference by public authorities and regardless of frontiers. The exercise of these freedoms, since they carry duty and responsibility, may be limited as prescribed by law and necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, territorial integrity, public safety, prevention of disorder and crime, protection of health or morals, protection of the reputation or rights of others, preventing disclosure of confidential information or to maintain the authority and impartiality of judiciary.	It is not the police intention to restrict freedom of expression. However, this right may be impinged upon by our use of the Public Order Order 1997 to impose restrictions on the locations and timing of any protests in the interest of public safety and for the prevention of disorder. Policing tactics will permit the freedom of expression unless lawful legislation is required to ensure public safety. Police evidence gatherers would be deployed to record incidents.
Article 11 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK law by the Human Rights Act 1998) Right to freedom of assembly and association. Everyone has the right to freedom of peaceful assembly and association with others. Can only be restricted as prescribed by law and as are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, public safety, prevention of disorder or crime, protection of health or morals or for the protection of the rights or freedoms of others. This shall not prevent the imposition of lawful restrictions on the exercise of these rights by members of the armed forces, the police or the administration of the State.	Protests will be permitted. When any protests are notified, it may be necessary to impose restrictions on their location and timings in the interest of public safety. Sterile areas would be created to prevent disorder. Our strategy recognises the right to freedom of peaceful assembly and association.
Article 14 of the European Convention on Human Rights (incorporated into UK law by the Human Rights Act 1998) Prohibition of discrimination. All the rights and freedoms in the Convention shall be enjoyed without discrimination on any grounds such as sex, race, colour, language, religion, political or other opinion, natural or social origin, association with a national minority, property, birth or other status.	In respect of our strategy for this event, there is no interference by police envisaged with Article 14 rights (Prohibition of Discrimination) Competing Rights of marchers and any protesters will be recognised and balanced by effective police deployment. It is anticipated that it may be necessary to implement traffic diversions. Cordons will be placed if considered necessary.
