

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION REQUEST

Request Number: F-2014-03933

Keyword: Finance

Subject: Resources And Cost Of Policing Event In Belfast August 10, 2014

Request and Answer:

I am writing to confirm that the Police Service of Northern Ireland has now completed its search for the information.

I have today decided to:

- disclose information in response to question 2 in full;
- fully exempt information in response to question 1 pursuant to the provisions of Sections 31 and 38 of the Act.

Question 1

Sunday the 10th August 2014 there was a massive policing operation in Belfast city centre. Please provide me with the following information.

The total number of Officers use in this operation and the breakdown of officers i.e. TSG / Response / Neighbourhood etc?

Answer

Section 17(1) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Police Service of Northern Ireland, when refusing to provide such information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which:

- (a) states that fact,
- (b) specifies the exemption in question and
- (c) states (if not otherwise apparent) why the exemption applies.

The exemption/s, as well as the factors the Department considered when deciding where the public interest lies, are listed below:

Section 31 (1)(a) – Law Enforcement

Section 38 (1)(a)(b) – Health And Safety

Sections 31 and 38 are qualified and prejudice based exemptions and therefore the Harm in disclosure must be evidenced and a Public Interest Test must be carried out.

Harm Test

Section 31

The disclosure of this information may allow criminals to plan how best to engage or occupy existing police resources within that area and other areas where police officers may have been drafted from in an effort to maximise their chances of committing serious crime. As a Service we have considerable experience of this where organised criminal groups create diversionary calls to divert police resources (e.g. hoax call or deliberately activating intruder alarms) or deliberately create disturbances or commit minor crime e.g. (road traffic offences) with the same aim. While it could also be argued that such criminal activity takes place without the number of officers on duty being known, it is reasonable to assume that confirmation of the number of officers involved would assist such activity by allowing more accurate judgements to be made by criminals.

Section 38

The disclosure of the information requested would be likely to increase the number of attacks on operational police officers by those being arrested or who have committed crime, or by those who would set out to attack police.

Public Interest Test

Factors favouring disclosure S31

The information concerns efficient and effective use of resources by the Service and the proper allocation of resources is a matter that the Service should hold up to public scrutiny. Disclosure of the information would inform the public debate on the issue of policing and contribute to the accuracy of that debate while illustrating to the public how funds are being spent.

Factors favouring non-disclosure S31

The current or future law enforcement role of the Service may be compromised by the release of the requested information. A clear link exists between knowledge available to criminals and the way they operate, with the resultant impact to the Service. An example of this is that we know that criminals have previously struck (e.g. ATM's and warehouses) at times when they believe officers to be on meal breaks or when there are likely to be fewer police (e.g. early hours of morning).

Factors favouring disclosure S38

Disclosure would lead to a better awareness for the community in relation to this topical area ensuring the public are able to carry on their daily routines knowing they are safe.

Factors favouring non-disclosure S38

By revealing information which could jeopardise the safety of the public in the area in question the public would lose confidence in the Police Service in their ability to protect the wellbeing of the community.

The release of information concerning Police Resources at any time, taken on its own or together with other information, either already available or the subject of further requests, could place Police Officers at risk of harm by attack.

Balancing Test

Public awareness and debate are strong arguments favouring release of this information. This however is weighed against the need to ensure the efficient and effective conduct of the Police Service in relation to the prevention and detection of crime and the Public Safety considerations involved in the delivery of operational policing which clearly favour non-disclosure.

In balance I would contend that the public interest in disclosing the information is outweighed by that in maintaining the exemptions listed, as it is doubtful if it can ever be in the public interest to disclose information which would prejudice the prevention or detection of crime, or which would jeopardise the delivery of operational policing and the safety of both police officers and the community the PSNI serves.

Question 2

The total cost for policing that operation?

Answer

This march was not cost coded and as such we are unable to advise what the cost would have been. We are not required to create information to provide a response and the PSNI are unable to say what the costs involved in policing this march would have been.

In order to assist I have however been able to ascertain some estimated costs.

The cost of the police operation is estimated at £316,941.

Please note that that the answer to question 2 is estimated costs and these are difficult to collate without having been through the month end and financial routines. As they are only estimated costs they are therefore subject to change.
