Police Recording of Crime - Definitions

2. Domestic Incidents and Crimes

Summary

During 2004/05 the Police Service of Northern Ireland established a baseline measure of incidents and crimes with a domestic motivation and this measure has been continued during 2005/06.

Definitions

Incidents

Any incident of threatening behaviour, violence, or abuse (psychological, physical, sexual, financial or emotional) by one family member against another or adults who are or have been intimate partners, regardless of gender, and whether a crime has occurred or not, will be recorded as domestic.

Recorded Crimes

- Recorded crimes (sometimes referred to as notifiable offences) are those which are deemed to be indictable or triable-either-way. A full explanation of how recorded crime figures are produced is provided on the last page of this document.
- A crime will be recorded as domestic where it meets the definition provided above. Not all domestic incidents will result in the recording of a crime.
- Domestic crimes are classified according to the Home Office Counting Rules and form a subset of the overall recorded crime figures.

Breach of Non-Molestation Orders

The offence of breach of a non-molestation order has been recorded as a notifiable offence under the Home Office Counting Rules since 1st April 2005, making the number of offences recorded, cleared and the clearance rate available from this date. Prior to this date the number of breaches of these orders was available, but not the number cleared or the clearance rate.

Table 2.1: Domestic Motivation: Incidents, Crimes and Clearance Rates Summary

	2004/05	2005/06	change
Total number of incidents	20,959	23,059	+10.0%
Total number of crimes

% clearance rate
including breach of orders	not available	77.5	not available
excluding breach of orders	72.9	78.4	+5.5%pts

- Between 2004/05 and 2005/06 the number of domestic incidents increased by 2,100 (+10.0%).
- There were 10,768 domestic crimes recorded in 2005/06, an increase of 11.5% (+1,112) on 2004/05 when breach of non-molestation order offences are included for both years.
- During 2005/06 two thirds of all crimes with domestic motivation fell within the category of violent crime (offences against the person, sexual offences and robbery). There were 7,206 such offences, representing 66.9% of the total. Of the remaining offences, criminal damage accounted for 15.3% and breach of non-molestation orders represented 13.1% of the total.
- The overall clearance rate for crimes with a domestic motivation in 2005/06 was 77.5%.

<sup>1</sup> The domestic offence, clearance and clearance rate figures shown above do not include assault on police or breach of non-molestation orders. Although breaches of non-molestation orders have been counted as offences in Northern Ireland under the Home Office Counting Rules from 1st April 2005, a complete set of figures for 2004/05 (ie offences, clearances and clearance rates) is not available and therefore comparisons between the two time periods are not feasible. However assault on police and breaches of non-molestation orders are included in the incident figures.

<sup>2</sup> While the clearance rates are rounded to one decimal place, the clearance rate change in % pts is calculated on the unrounded clearance rates and then rounded to one decimal place.

Recorded Crime

Recorded crime figures (sometimes referred to as notifiable offences) detail those crimes and offences (including attempts) recorded by the police which are deemed to be indictable or triable-either-way. Certain closely associated summary offences are also counted in the recorded crime figures.

- Indictable offences are those more serious crimes which are tried on indictment in the Crown Court by a judge and jury;
- Triable-either-way offences are those offences which, under certain circumstances, are triable either summarily in a magistrates court or on indictment in the Crown Court;
- Summary offences are less serious and are tried in a Magistrates Court before a resident magistrate with no jury.

The number of crimes recorded by the police is dependent on two factors:

- Whether the victim or a representative of the victim brings that crime to the attention of the police or on the crime coming to the attention of the police through some other means (such as the police officer being present at the time);
- Whether that incident is determined as being a recordable offence within the categories laid down by the Home Office in the official counting rules.

Clearances

Clearances (or detections as they may alternatively be known) are, broadly speaking, those crimes that have been 'cleared up' by the police. Crimes are counted as 'cleared or detected' in accordance with strict counting rules issued by the Home Office. They are counted on the basis of crimes rather than offenders. For example, if six offenders are involved in a robbery and are all arrested and charged, then this counts as one clearance. Alternatively if only one of the six is identified and charged while the other five remain unidentified and go free, this also counts as one clearance. In this respect clearance data differs from conviction data as conviction data counts offenders while clearance data counts crimes.

The following methods of clearance involve a formal sanction:

- Charging or issuing a summons to an offender;
- Issuing a caution to the offender;
- Having the offence accepted for consideration in court;
- The offender is a juvenile who is dealt with by means of an informed warning or restorative caution.

Offences not involving a formal sanction but still regarded as 'cleared up' are those where the police take no further action for the following reasons:

- Offender, victim or essential witness is dead or too ill;
- Victim refuses or is unable to give evidence;
- Offender is under the age of criminal responsibility;
- Police or PPS decides that no useful purpose would be served by proceeding;
- Time limit of six months for commencing prosecution has been exceeded.

Violent Crime

Violent crime comprises three main offence groupings: offences against the person, sexual offences and robbery. What violent crime offences have in common is that they involve actual violence or the threat of violence. The degree of violence varies considerably, even between incidents in the same classification. The large majority of incidents categorised as violent crime do not actually involve any significant injury to the victim, although some of the crimes not resulting in injury may still be traumatic for their victims eg threats to kill.
